"We believe in the mission of Meta House and in the good work they do to end the generational cycle of addiction by healing women and strengthening families," said Dan Bukiewicz, president of The Milwaukee Building and Construction Trades Council. "We were happy to support them in 2020, and happy to have raised even more funding this year to support their programming."

Across three locations, Meta House offers residential treatment, outpatient treatment, and a recovery housing community. Currently, Meta House has approximately 50 adults and children in residence.

"A lot of us in the trades don't think twice about paying our essential bills," said Tom Coyne, president of the Waukesha County Labor Council. "However, when going over a speedbump in life or running a house on a tight budget, this basic need can be a huge issue. In solidarity with my fellow union brothers and sisters, we are honored to be able to assist Meta House by paying their heat bill for the month of January. I would like to again thank all who donated."

"Meta House is extremely grateful for a second year of generous support of several local trade unions," said Valerie P. Vidal, president and CEO of Meta House. "In partnership with United Way, their gift will cover utility costs for the families living at Meta House throughout the month of January 2022, ensuring they have a warm and nurturing place to heal. Thank you for supporting local women and children as they fight to rebuild their families from the devastating effects of addiction, trauma, and poverty."

United Way of Greater Milwaukee & Waukesha County helped to coordinate the donation between the local construction trade unions and Meta House. Both organizations are long-standing United Way community partners.
